The Relief Expenditure Burden

With the Federal elections over and the political complexion of the next Parliament of Canada defined, the government of the country will be faced with a number of important problems to decide, and not the least of these is the question of the steps which must be taken to ease the debt burden of governmental units in Western Canada.

By governmental units is meant the governments of the provinces and of the municipalities, urban and rural.

During the past five years the public finances of the Western Canadian provinces and of the municipalities, which are their creatures, have been strained to the breaking point to meet the problems which drought and general unemployment have brought in their train.

Not only has the public purse of the Western provinces and of the municipalities been depleted in the struggle to ensure that their citizens should not starve, freeze or go shelterless in their grim fight against great odds, but they have been obliged to pledge their future resources, to an alarming extent, to enable the citizens of the present generation to keep their heads above water.

In the three prairie provinces millions of dollars have been spent to furnish a substantial percentage of the population with food, fuel and clothing, and in the urban centres with shelter as well; and this, despite the fact that the Federal government has also contributed large sums to bolster up the provinces and the municipalities in their fight to ensure the necessities of life for their people.

In addition, however, to the money which has been expended out of current revenues these provincial and municipal governments have pledged many more millions of dollars against the credit of the future earning power of the people, a debt which will have to be liquidated in the future either by the taxpayers of to-day or by the rising generation, or a combination of both.

Without going into statistics which, at the best, make dry reading, it is axiomatic to say that the indebtedness which has been piled up on this count, directly and indirectly, reaches a staggering total and has passed the figure which is within the competence of these governmental units to meet from existing resources.

One of the conditions contributing to the existing condition of the finances of the Western provinces and municipalities is the inequability of the distribution of the tax burden as between individual taxpayers and the inequability of the distribution of the bases of taxation as between the federal, provincial and municipal governing entities.

The financial situation which has developed as a result of these inequities is one which will have to be faced and remedied by the newly-elected Parliament if the Western provinces and municipalities are to remain solvent and are to be enabled to extricate themselves from a position which has become intolerable.

So far as the municipal governments are concerned, their financial plight has been accentuated by practical limitation to reality as, at least, the principal tax base, and this applies to both rurals and urbans, only in different degree. Land has more than passed the limit of its endurance as a source of revenue for governments. Other spheres of taxation are denied to the municipalities, and this is one discriminatory feature which will have to be remedied.

In seeking additional sources of revenue municipalities are cramped by legislative action of their superior provinces and the provinces in turn are hampered by Federal authority.

What is needed is a nation-wide conference in which the municipalities can get together with the provinces and the Dominion and, in a spirit of tolerance and recognition of the difficulties of one another, come to an agreement which will provide for specific delimitation of spheres of taxation and a definite understanding that the several governmental units will not in future encroach upon one another's taxation preserves.

This understanding should be translated into legislative enactment and if it involves amendments to the British North America Act, as undoubtedly it would, efforts should be made to secure the necessary sanction.

The problem of relief, it has been reiterated by competent authorities time and again, is a national one. The provinces have said so. The urban municipalities have said so and the rural municipalities hold the same view, even if they have not adopted resolutions in convention to that effect.

If the Federal government is not prepared to recognize the situation in the west as a national problem, the only alternative is for the Federal government to make it possible for the provinces and municipalities to liquidate past, present and future expenditures by providing them with the machinery to levy the money where the money is available.

Motor Car Has Changed History Of the Bedouins

The London Sunday Express says the Bedouins in Arabia have, from time immemorial, lived by transporting goods across the desert on their camels. To-day the motor car is displacing the camel as the ship of the desert. So the Bedouins are seeking a new livelihood. In the Arab kingdoms they have begun to grow corn where it never grew before. They are settling down and building cities for the first time. The motor car is changing the map of the world. It is changing the history of the peoples.

Rear Admiral Byrd Says Dominion Pilots Best For Arctic Exploration

A tribute to Canada's north country flyers was paid at Toronto by Rear-Admiral Byrd, famous United States Antarctic explorer. Replying to Mayor Simpson's welcome at a civic reception outside of city hall, Admiral Byrd said Canadians knew more of polar flying than any other pilots. Long experience flying over snow and ice and in sub-zero weather made them excellent pilots for Arctic or Antarctic expeditions, he said.

Beauty In Old London

Pictures Of Infinite Variety Can Be Seen From Great Bridges

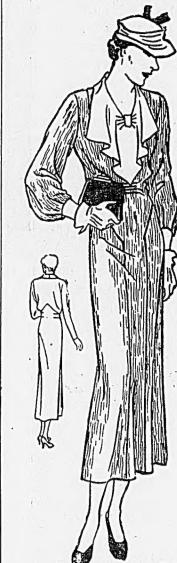

Old St. Paul's, perched high on Ludgate Hill, once a commanding position, is being gradually crowded out by other buildings. The most impressive sight of Wren's venerable cathedral is that looking from Fleet-street up Ludgate Hill, I have heard faded memories men familiar with Fleet-street at all hours of the day and night, grow lyrical about the loneliness of that glimpse of St. Paul's at dawn.

A great white London seems to have sprung up like magic. But it has not obliterated the past, and one of the charms of a walk through the city is the unexpected glimpses one gets through its narrow courts and alleys of old taverns, little shops, and ivied churches that have stood unchanged through the centuries.

It has been said that one cannot walk a hundred yards in London without seeing a bunch of trees. That is almost completely true. In fact, there are enough trees in the London streets and squares to make up, if placed together, a very respectable forest. Who has ever noted that there are over seventy trees in the Strand?

But nothing excels the river views. Wherever one looks, or from whatever angle of the seven great bridges from the Tower to Lambeth, there is picture after picture of infinite variety and beauty. At night, when Embankment sparkles with its thousand lights, the view from the bridges of London's curving waterfront has the quality of pure magic. No Whistler nocturne could do it justice.—Overseas Daily Mail.

SMART DRESS FOR LARGER FIGURES

By Ellen Worth

The jockey coat particularly suggests youth-line.

What a lovely feeling getting into a new woolen dress on crisp fall days. This season they seem to be smarter than ever.

Tonight's model is a charming style for women of fuller figure, for it has slenderizing qualities with its V-neck, jabot collar and has bias seam across the hips.

The original was in dark plum lightweight woolen with matching toning satin collar.

The two surfaces of black satin back crepe would work out beautifully in this easily made model.

Black silk back crepe with white satin collar is also a very smart scheme for it.

Style No. 448 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44; 46 and 48-inches bust. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 36-inch material with yard of 30-inch contrasting for three-quarter sleeve dress.

Pattern 15c each. Address mail orders to: Pattern Department, Winnipeg Newsprint Union, 175 McDermott St., Winnipeg.

Automatic doors have soft edges which may bump but not scar the slightly tardy passenger. Cars carrying 200 passengers leave a station every three minutes.

A Rainbow Snow Storm

Beautiful Layers Of Varied Colors Fall On Australian Alps

Colored snow fell on the Australian Alps for the second time this winter. It changed the landscape around Hotham Heights from white to chocolate within a few hours, while at Mt. Buller the inhabitants woke to see a bright red layer on the snow, half an inch deep. By noon heavy snow had blotted out the red layer. The most remarkable fall was at St. Bernard's Hospice, where pink snow fell in two layers, an inch and a half thick, with a 6-inch strip glittering white snow sandwiched in between.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks of it—it—in comparison with "Aspirin".

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. The discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin," in and out, without any effort, have proved to the medical profession about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, who has no care beyond the choice of her costume, or the coming-out party. Her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At last Nancy's mother receives a letter from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a clear view of the surrounding landscape. She had been told by Tubbs and told her to follow. A track comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill, and Nancy finds that she is lost. Tubbs and told her to follow. Matthew Adams tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out. Nancy's feet are hurting, and Jack says, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one. Nancy decides how to get her parents to send a car body which could spare and all they could induce others to let them have.

Nancy's parents and friends gave their liberal support to her request for books, and a valuable box arrived in due course. Father Adams put up a sign for the library, and the Adams boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations. Nancy's feet are lame, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one. Jac. Nels. and Matthew Adam, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthew's uncle for the ride, and after Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the snow, and then cold, they walk a full half of a school bus, which was stalled across the road with its back resting in a snow-filled gully. Their car being wrecked, Jack and Nancy stay with the children, and do what they can to help. Nancy finds that Jack sets out for help in the blizzard. He succeeds in finding help, and the party of children and Nancy are rescued. Nancy's feet are lame, and Jack is seriously ill with pneumonia, but both of them recover.

has strangely, his first glance, was not on Nancy, but on the mound of apparently lifeless children beyond her. Then, all in a breath, they focussed on the girl herself—a girl only half dead, her hands moving mechanically in an effort to bring circulation into a boy's small feet which were, it transpired later, not frozen so badly as her own. Her head, drooping forward on her breast, lifted with difficulty as the door opened, then dropped again, but not too soon for Matthew to have seen the glassy look that clouded her blue eyes.

"Nancy!" he cried. Just that. He was on his knees—had snatched at the fur coat and wrapped it round her. It seemed to him that the girl fought back the overpowering drowsiness by a supreme effort. One icy hand groped for his cheek, as if to make sure that he was flesh and blood. She struggled to speak, struggled so valiantly that Matt's eyes misted with pity when, after a moment, the words came.

"Find... Jack.... You must find, Jack, Matt.... And... and then take... the children... I am... all... all... right..."

After that Nancy knew nothing at all for a long time. She retained only a confused memory of raising for a moment to find herself in a room that seemed very full of people; wondering why Matthew Adam and a strange woman were packing snow about her legs; and hearing a child cry out as if in pain.

She recalled that later (how much later it was impossible to say) she had cried herself with such pain as she had not imagined; and then

Nancy tried to smile, but found herself too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—a little homesick," she said. "I always said I had the courage of a pioneer. And you have too, Nancy. I—I am so proud of you."

Nancy said nothing for a little while. Scenes from those tragic hours were crowding back.

"You were right—about the weather, Cousin Columbine," she admitted in a curious, small voice. And then, a tear slipping from beneath her lashes: "I wish... I..."

"What do you wish, dear?" asked the old lady, bending closer.

Nancy tried to smile, but found herself too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—a little homesick," she said. "I always said I had the courage of a pioneer. And you have too, Nancy. I—I am so proud of you."

A nurse came in just then with a strange doctor; and Cousin Columbine went out. They looked at her legs, and brought another doctor to look at them. Nancy wondered what they were thinking, but was too tired to ask and dropped asleep before they left the room.

It was night when she opened her eyes again. A dim light burned, and a different nurse was there, and a new doctor. No, it wasn't a doctor, Nancy saw after a moment. It was just Matt Adam. She heard the woman say to tell Miss Nelson that her niece was sleeping, and that after a consultation the doctors felt that, after all, she wouldn't lose her feet.

Now how in the world, mused Nancy, only half awake, could you lose your feet even if you wanted to? That nurse was crazy. She spoke as if your feet could be mislaid like a pair of gloves or a pocketbook, or something! The idea made her burst into mirth. Then, realizing that Matt was about to leave, a wave of homesickness swept over her again, and she protested.

"Don't go, Matt!"

Again the unexpected voice startled her, but Matt came close, and stood there looking down at her. Then some one turned up a light, and Nancy saw how unbelievably tired he was.

things blurred again. Even the long ride to the hospital was but a dim remembrance of being wrapped in blankets and held tenderly in strong arms. Once, they told her, she opened her eyes and asked for Jack, but drowsed again before the answer came.

Her first clear memory was walking to a sense of intense suffering, and seeing bright sunlight dancing across her bed. It was a white bed in a small, white room; and a white-clad woman was speaking to a shadow in the door. Nancy's eyes travelled upward and saw a cap. So the woman was a nurse. And this must be a hospital. "But why am I here?" she asked herself confusedly. "And what had happened to my legs?" Then she remembered! Those dreadful hours of cold and hunger—those helpless children—Jack facing the blizzard all alone. And suddenly Nancy was just a little girl again, a frightened little girl who yearned for the comfort that had never failed her when life seemed cruel—and life had never been so cruel before. She said, her voice breaking a little: "I want—I want my mother."

"Thank God!" said the nurse; and the tall shadow in the doorway turned into Matthew Adam—a gaunt and haggard Matthew to be sure, but comfortably familiar amid the strangeness. Two quick strides brought him to Nancy's bed, and bending down he lifted one of her hands gently.

"Thank God!" he said, just like the white nurse, and then anticipating the question she was too weak to ask: "Jack got there, Nancy. He reached Bartlett's before we did; but the wires were down so Mrs. Bartlett couldn't call for help, and her husband was hunting for cattle in the drifts. But if Jack hadn't gone there's no knowing what we'd have found you, Nancy. He was all in, of course, but—but he will be all right."

This was Matt's verdict, not the doctors' nor did he add that Jack was only a room away, fighting pneumonia. Time enough for that knowledge when she was stronger. Then the nurse warned: "That's all for now, Mr. Adam," and Nancy opened her eyes, which had grown sleepy, and asked: "The—children?"

"All safe," Matt answered; then, as a cry of pain escaped her, "Oh, Nancy! It is as bad as that?"

It was very bad indeed, but with returning strength came self-control, and though there were times in the hours to come when her face twitched with anguish, no whimper passed the girl's lips again.

Later she woke to find Cousin Columbine beside her bed.

"How do you feel, child?" The crisp old voice was shaken with emotion. Nancy scarcely recognized it.

"How's—Jack?" she asked. "I'm stronger than Jack, I..."

The weak words lagged, and Cousin Columbine said quickly: "Your brother's making a brave fight, child. I always said he had the courage of a pioneer. And you have too, Nancy. I—I am so proud of you."

Find... Jack.... You must find, Jack, Matt.... And... and then take... the children... I am... all... all... right..."

Nancy said nothing for a little while. Scenes from those tragic hours were crowding back.

"Better?" His voiced was heavy with fatigue and long anxiety.

Nancy nodded.

"Where's—Cousin Columbine?"

"In bed. It's pretty late. She's staying down here to keep an eye on me."

"And—Jack?"

There was a noticeable pause before Matt answered steadily: "Don't worry about Jack, Nancy. That kid's the dandiest fighter you ever saw!"

The nurse turned at this, and going to a window, did something unnecessary to the curtain; while Matthew, bending down, said quietly: "Is there anything I can do before I go, Nancy?"

"You're tired, Matt," she answered with irrelevance.

He smiled at that and didn't look so tired after all, but the girl said: "You won't drive up the pass to-night, will you? Promise you won't—or I'll worry."

"I promise you'll stay down here with John. Mother thought Miss Columbine might need me in the morning for—errands or something," he added hurriedly. "Now be a good girl, Nancy, and go to sleep."

"Couldn't you stay till I drop off?" she pleaded. "I'm kind of—home sick."

Matt glanced at the nurse, not knowing what rules there are in hospitals; and sat a nod sat down by Nancy's bed.

"We can't let you be homesick," he told her gravely, "but you mustn't talk."

As the nurse (smiling in a manner that would have brought a blush to the young man's cheeks) if he hadn't been so utterly unself-conscious in that moment) turned down the light and left them for a little time, it seemed to Matt that all his weariness had dropped away. Nancy wanted him there! No matter what happened, he'd always have that to remember. He might be awkward and bashful where most girls were concerned, but now, when she was well and suffering, the one girl in the world had asked him to stand by her side. Nancy tried to smile, but found herself too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—a little homesick," she said. "I always said I had the courage of a pioneer. And you have too, Nancy. I—I am so proud of you."

Tramp—"Yes, lady, I found that out years ago."

Cheese and Milk Survey

With a view to obtaining information with respect to the consumption of cheese and milk in Canada, a survey is being undertaken by the Economics Branch and the Dairy Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The survey is being conducted in Ontario, Quebec and Prairie Provinces and information is obtained from homes in cities, towns and farms. The survey has already begun in Ontario which has been selected as a city representative of the industrial cities of Canada.

The cheese industry in Canada is a very important one. Approximately 70,000,000 lbs. of cheese will be produced in Canada this year which will have a value of about $6,825,000. Of the important countries of the world, Canada's consumption of cheese per capita is very low. It amounts to approximately three and one-third pounds per person per year, about one-third as much as the consumption of cheese in the United Kingdom and more than one pound less than the consumption of cheese per capita in the United States. It is felt that the consumption of milk in Canada should be much higher. With a per capita consumption of less than one pint per day many growing children are not getting sufficient calcium and phosphorous materials so necessary for the development of strong bones and teeth.

Enumerators who are university graduates, will visit representative homes and information will also be obtained from hotels and restaurants as to the amount of cheese of different kinds and the amount of milk consumed by adults and children. The information obtained from each household will be strictly confidential; their names and addresses will not be recorded.

The object of the survey is to learn what kind of cheese housekeepers prefer, why the consumption of cheese is so low compared with other countries, and how differences in nationality and location affect the consumption of both milk and cheese. This information will be tabulated and analysed later and it is hoped it will reveal ways whereby the returns to the many cheese and milk producers in Canada may be increased and the supply of these dairy products may be brought more in line with the demand of consumers.

Montana Tremors Smash Chimneys

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 12 (A.P.) — Sections of Montana were shaken early today by a series of earthquakes which damaged property and caused hundreds of persons to flee from their homes.

Chimneys toppled into the street here; plaster was torn from walls, and at nearby Fort Harrison veterans' hospital the walls in nearly every building were cracked.

In two hours and a half 18 minor quakes were recorded by instruments at the weather bureau.

Justice Done to Alberta Farmers

Arrangements have been completed for a settlement by the Canadian wheat board of the claims of a proportion of wheat Pool members who delivered wheat to the 1930 pool and received less than 60 cents a bushel. Mr. J. L. McFarland took over the bulk of the wheat pooled in that year and utilized in his stabilization operations. When the Wheat Board Act was drawn up provision was made for a settlement of the inequity involved in the situation. This is now being put into effect. The clearing up of this situation should be a matter for general satisfaction. It would be unfair to have used the wheat contributed by those farmers to conduct stabilization and then not recompense them in some manner.

The money distributed will help general conditions in this province.

The distribution of $2,750,000 cash among 27,000 farmers will give business an immediate impetus. It has also been pointed out that most of the recipients have had their crops partially or completely ruined by frost this year. To these people the money will be doubly welcome.

The Canadian Wheat Board Participation Certificates

Participation certificates issued to producers who deliver their wheat to the Canadian Wheat Board, should be retained to the possession of the producer, says a statement issued from the Board headquarters.

Several farmers have already forwarded their certificates to the Board offices and the Board again draws the attention of growers to the printed remarks on the certificates carefully for surrender to the Board when required.

When it becomes necessary for producers to surrender their certificates to the Board, instructions to that effect will be issued by the Board. Meantime, all growers holding these certificates should carefully preserve and retain them in their own possession.

Mr. A. Rasmusner of Cereal, has purchased the old Cameron house that has not been occupied for many years, and is tearing the building down.

Aberhart Will Go East to Discuss Alberta Finances

Premier Expects to Confer
With New Govt Before
End of Month

Edmonton, Oct. 25 (C.P.) — Premier Aberhart hopes to leave for Ottawa before the end of the month to discuss the province's needs with the incoming Liberal administration according to his statement here today.

"Our financing has been arranged only up to the end of October," said the premier, "I hope that I can go east before the end of this month to discuss arrangements for the future."

The premier said that of course time would have to be given for the change of government, but the province proposed to put the case before the Federal authorities just as speedily as possible.

When the Alberta application for Federal assistance, amounting to more than $18,000,000, was put before the Bennett government it was arranged that $2,250,000 would be advanced to carry the province up to the end of this month.

Remanded on perjury Count

DRU WHEELER, Oct. 2nd, charged with perjury, John Shaley, miner of Newcastle was remanded for trial at the sitting of the supreme court to be held here November 18th, on $2,000 bail when he appeared before Magistrate L. O'Connor for preliminary hearing at Drumheller court Tuesday.

Shaley was charged with the offence following the Provincial election when it was alleged he swore that he was a British subject when challenging, while a few days later, he was charged by the prosecution, appeared for hearing at the district court sitting for his application for naturalization.
